NEW-BRUNSWICK, Nov. 14.

On Wednesday last, at 12 o'clock, the President of the United States, with his lady and suite, arrived here on his way to the seat of government, escorted by the Woodbridge troop of horse, commanded by captain Edgar; he was received by the inhabitants with every mark of respect and esteem, due from a grateful people, to a man whose life has been so distinguished in promoting the public good, and whose acknowledged abilities have been uniformly and disinterestedly employed in establishing the happiness of his country—and under a federal salute and ringing of bells, was conducted to his quarters, at Mr. Drake's.

At two o'clock, the inhabitants of the city and vicinity waited on the President with an address; it was presented by col. Neilson, who with col. Bayard, Mr. Cornelius Tenbroek and Mr. Clarkson, had been previously appointed by the committee to wait on the President in New-York, with an invitation to dine with them on his way to Philadelphia—The address was politely received, which, with the answer, we cheerfully give to the public.

Col. Neilson introduced himself with the address to the President in the following words:

Once more, I have the honor to stand before you, Sir, in behalf of the inhabitants of New-Brunswick and its vicinity, and in their name, to offer you an address, expressive of their affectionate esteem for your person, and of the high gratification they experience at the administration of their government being placed in your hands; with permission I will deliver the address.

To the PRESIDENT of the UNITED STATES.

The address of the inhabitants of the city of New-Brunswick, and its vicinity.

SIR,

The inhabitants of the city of New-Brunswick, and its vicinity, are highly gratified with the opportunity of expressing to you their affectionate esteem.

Happy in a government of laws, and happy in the administration of it under the great and good Washington, we could not but sincerely rejoice, when the voice of our country, upon his retirement, gave us for a Chief Magistrate, a person whose past services had endeared him to his country, and whose political principles ensured him the confidence of his fellow-citizens.

The sentiments, Sir, which you have disclosed respecting the duties of the United States, in regard to their foreign relations, while they meet with our unequivocal approbation, are at the same time a happy presage, that the measures which you are pursuing will terminate in the security of our peace, and in the preservation of the honor and dignity of our national character.

We have heard, Sir, the voice of faction, and we have abhorred it—we have seen the progress of foreign influence, and we have lamented its pernicious effects. Religion, morality, and patriotism have had much to fear—but we indulge the pleasing hope, that he who sways the sceptre of universal nature, has not destined the people of this happy country to work out their own destruction.

With us, as Jersey men and citizens of the United States, we are prompted to declare, that a love of order and good government, a sacred regard to moral rectitude, and the same Amor Patriæ which so indignantly recoiled at the idea of foreign domination, still remain undiminished.

May it, Sir, be your happy lot to see that the people of this country will rally under no other standard but their own, in support of their Constitution, and in defence of the laws of their country.

May your administration of our government be long and prosperous, and when it shall please the great ruler of the universe to summon you into a more exalted seat of eternal bliss, may you, retiring, bid adieu to your grateful country by the pleasing appellation of HAPPY PEOPLE!

FRED. FRELINGHUYSEN,
ARCHIBALD MERCER,

To the INHABITANTS of NEW-BRUNSWICK and its VICINITY.

GENTLEMEN,

The esteem and affection of the inhabitants of the city of New-Brunswick and its vicinity, expressed in this excellent address, are very flattering to me, and cannot fail to meet with a cordial return of gratitude on my part.

The happiness you enjoyed in a government of laws, under the great and good Washington, was common to you, and all virtuous men in America. Even the very few who imagined, or pretended they disliked it, could not but be happy under it. The satisfaction you express in the choice of a successor, your approbation of his past services, and confidence in his political principles, demand his most strenuous endeavors to deserve their continuance.

Your approbation of my sentiments of our foreign relations, and the measures we are pursuing afford me much consolation, as nothing can contribute so much to success, the continuance of peace, and the preservation of the honor and dignity of our national character, as a happy harmony among the people, and their union in sentiment with government.

If the voice of faction has been heard, and foreign influence has made a progress; if religion, morality and patriotism, have had much to fear; we have reason to believe that this has been chiefly due, to surprise and misrepresentation, aided by an enthusiasm for liberty too ardent, and intemperate. The progress of enquiry, and circulation of true information, we have great reason to expect will put our countrymen on their guard, promote an impartial spirit of Independence, a rational spirit of liberty, and a sober determination to preserve their morals and support their religion, without which patriotism is but a chimera.

Your noble declaration as Jerseymen and citizens of the United States in favor of order, government, morals, patriotism and religion, does you great honor, and cannot fail to have a happy influence, and afford a great encouragement to similar resolutions in all parts of the Union.

That it will be your happy lot as well as mine, to see the people rally under their own standard, in contempt and defiance of all others, in support of their constitution, and defence of their country whenever occasion shall require, I have not the smallest doubt.

In return for your pathetic wishes for the prosperity of my administration, and for the final completion of it, most devoutly to be wished, by taking my last leave of a happy people, which have tenderly affected me, I present you my best wishes, and offering up my sincere prayers, for your temporal and eternal felicity.

JOHN ADAMS.

After which a great number of the citizens were presented to the President, and received by him with that graceful ease and politeness, which is the true mark of real dignity, and nobleness of mind—we mention with pleasure that among the citizens introduced to the President were a number of the substantial old farmers of the neighborhood, who expressed the highest satisfaction at the truly republican, affectionate behaviour of their chief magistrate.

The President having before accepted the invitation from the inhabitants of the city and its vicinity to dine with them, at 4 o'clock. Gen. White, Mr. Hardenbergh and Mr. Boggs, a committee chosen to adjust the preliminaries for his reception and entertainment, waited on him at his lodgings, and conducted him thro' a lane formed of citizens, and citizen soldiers of the city and neighborhood in complete uniform, amidst a large concourse of admiring spectators, to the white-hall tavern, where upwards of fifty sincere friends to the government of their country, were gratified in the opportunity of sitting down at table with the faithful guardian of their rights and privileges, and partaking with him of a handsome repast provided for the occasion, by Mr. Vernon.

After dinner the following toasts were drank.

1st. The United States—May their Union be perpetual, and their honor inviolate.

2d. The Constitution and laws.—May Americans ever remember, that law is liberty, and the Constitution the sacred palladium of political safety.

3d. The Vice-President and both Houses of Congress—As Guardians of the liberties of their country, may their zeal for the common good, banish from their councils every sentiment inimical to so great a purpose.

4th. GEORGE W SHINGTON; the pride and ornament of his country, may he long live happy in his retirement.

5th. The Marquis La Fayette—May he have the happiness to see the revolution which has convulsed Europe, speedily terminate in equal liberty, remote from tyranny on the one hand, and licentiousness on the other.

6th. General Kosciusko—May the ardent esteem of the friends of freedom, be a balm to his wounds, and a sweet consolation in his retirement—

7th. Our Foreign Ministers—May the lustre of their patriotism, their firmness, fidelity and candor, secure respect to their country, and convince the world that our councils are founded on the broad basis of national rectitude and honor.

8th. The Congress of 1776—May we duly appreciate their resplendent magnanimity and patriotism, and be emulous to support untarnished, those glorious rights so nobly asserted.

9th. The memory of the patriots who fell in defence of American Freedom—May their example be a lesson to us, justly to regard its invaluable blessings.

10th. Independence—May a sense of national honor exalt the American character above a debasing predilection for, or fear of any foreign power under heaven.

11th. The American Press---may it meet with due support when open for manly discussion, but never become countenanced when it becomes the vehicle of licentious abuse.

12th. May the friends of America be impressed with a suitable resentment against every instance of foreign interference with respect to its government.

13th. The American character---May all but true federalists be found wanting, when weighed in the American balance.

14th. Agriculture—may industry, frugality and innocence, ensure the American farmers "rural felicity."

15th. Commerce---May the American commerce be as unbounded as the ocean, and as unrestrained as its waves.

16th. The American fair---may they smile upon the friends, and never cease to frown upon the enemies of their country.

At eight o'clock on Thursday morning, the President proceeded on his journey, escorted by Major Dunham's troop of horse, commanded by Lieut. Voorhees, the major being absent, attended by a large number of citizens eight miles on his way, when he alighted from his carriage, and took leave of them, after expressing his thanks to them in an obliging manner for their politeness, and in return received their good wishes for a pleasant journey, accompanied with their earnest hope, for a co-operation of congressional wisdom and patriotism, with his exertions to promote the welfare of their country.

Col. Neilson and Judge Mercer, the President and Vice President appointed to superintend the ceremonies of the table, on Wednesday, were gratified in receiving the approbation of their fellow-citizens in regard to their conduct on the occasion—and in return expressed their thanks for the discreet and judicious support of the company.

On Thursday the 9th instant, the following address of the Legislature of this state, then in session at Trenton, was presented to the President of the United States, who was in that place on his way to the seat of government.

TO JOHN ADAMS,
President of the United States,

SIR,

THE Legislative Council and General Assembly of New-Jersey, with much pleasure embrace this opportunity of assuring you of their high respect for your person and character both in your political and individual relations.

Warmly attached to the principles of a free representative government, we rejoice that in experience, the election of a Chief Magistrate has been conducted with temperance, and shewn to the world, that freemen can elect without turbulence or tumult, and that integrity and ability will be the object of their choice.

Your early agency, Sir, in promoting and establishing the liberty and independence of our country, and since that time your negociations abroad and various public functions at home, afford the happiest presage that your present administration will not only protect our interests, but also promote harmony and unanimity among the citizens of these states, and friendly sentiment and intercourse with all mankind.

Involved as we are in the conflicting interests of this eventful period, while we would court the favor of calm investigation, we do not forget that man is born to be free and must not yield to dishonor. Conscious that unity of sentiment and firmness of conduct are the surest means of securing our liberties, we yield to none in attachment to our government and promptness to defend it; but while we feel the enthusiasm we deprecate the occasion, and, relying on the wisdom of our constitution and the just administration of it, we anticipate the pleasing prospect of nations yet unborn enjoying undiminished, the rights which it shall have protected and secured.

Be assured, Sir, of our warmest wishes for your personal welfare, and our sincere desire that your public conduct may meet the approbation and be rewarded with the gratitude of your fellow-citizens, and finally terminate in the felicity of your country.

ANSWER.

GENTLEMEN,

I receive this address from the legislative council and general assembly of New-Jersey with a grateful sense of the high honor conferred upon me.

As there is no people whose attachment to the principles of a free representative government has been more constant and consistent than that of the citizens of New-Jersey, there is none with whom I could more heartily rejoice, that elections of a Chief Magistrate have been conducted without turbulence or tumult; and may future experience demonstrate, that integrity and ability will always be the object of the choice of freemen.

Your kind compliments to me, merit my best thanks and strongest assurances, that should any thing in my administration protect your interest in common with all those of your fellow-citizens through the union, promote harmony and unanimity among the citizens of these states, and friendly sentiments and intercourse with all mankind, I should esteem myself the happiest of all men.

In this eventful period, when the equilibrium of society is disadjusted, and the passions of men let loose, without restraint or controul, in so great a part of the world, it behoves us well to consider the situation we are in, and be prepared in our minds for whatever we may be called by Providence to do, or to suffer, in the cause of honor and virtue, religion and liberty.

Your sentiment, that we must not yield to dishonor, so well becomes the character and dignity of freemen, that it is very certain there never has been, and equally evident there never can be, a free people to whom their honor is not dearer than their lives.

As the citizens of New-Jersey have been exceeded by none in their attachment to the constitution, your reliance on the just administration of the government, is peculiarly honorable and agreeable to me.

Accept, gentlemen, of my cordial thanks for your kind wishes, and an assurance of my sincere prayers for the felicity of the United States in general, and for the legislature and citizens of New-Jersey in particular.

JOHN ADAMS.

To majors Meeker, Ward and Dunham, captains Haynes, Edgar, Gulick and Smith, of the New-Jersey cavalry.

GENTLEMEN,

IT affords me a peculiar satisfaction to have it in my power to say, that the promptitude and punctuality which have been observed by you, and the officers and dragoons of your respective troops, (in the execution of your patriotic and polite offer of escorting the President of the United States through New-Jersey) has merited and obtained the approbation of many worthy citizens, and must claim the applause of all who are friends to our happy government, and wish well to the Chief Magistrate of it, whose station is entitled to attention and respect, and whose character so justly deserves the esteem and affection of his fellow-citizens.—Although I am fully persuaded, that your having acted under no other mandate than that of true American patriotism (in performing this voluntary, pleasing and honorable duty) is to you a sweet reward; yet as I conceive it my duty at all times to encourage and promote military parades, in my official character; I shall therefore embrace the opportunity which now offers in reporting to the commander in chief, the martial appearance and good conduct of the officers and dragoons under your command on this occasion; and have no doubt but his excellency's approbation will be expressed in such terms as will be pleasing to you, and must add to that satisfaction, which citizen soldiers always experience in having done their duty.

Flag of the United States.

A law of Congress, passed Jan. 13, 1794, enacts, that the flag of the United States be 15 stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be 15 stars, white in a field blue. It is said that the French have captured American vessels for want of conformity to the above description; and many still sail under the thirteen striped flag.

TOWN MEETING.

The inhabitants of this town assembled yesterday, to take into consideration the subject of granting a sum, as additional to the pay of government, to those men who might be drafted in this town, as a part of the detachment of 80,000 militia ordered by Congress. And also to see whether they would grant a compensation to the militia of the town when called out for ordinary trainings, pursuant to law. In the first case, it was voted, that Two Dollars should be paid to each soldier detached, on his appearance upon parade for inspection armed and equipped according to law; and fourteen dollars a month if called into service, and one month's pay in that case advanced.

The other question, which was founded upon a supposed unjust inequality in the burthen of militia expenses, met a cool and candid discussion. Every speaker avowed the sentiment on which the question was bro't forward; but it was doubted whether a vote of pay for that purpose would have any validity, if it should be disputed when the taxes were assessed and attempted to be collected; and in this case much confusion might ensue in the final arrangements of the town. The discussion issued in the appointment of a numerous and respectable committee, to investigate the legality of making such compensation, and should they find it legal, and expedient, to recommend a certain sum for that purpose, and the ways and means for raising it, and make report at the adjournment on the first Monday in December next.

PHILADELPHIA,

THURSDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 16.

Particulars of the Mutiny on board the British Frigate HERMIONE.

When about 3 days out from Cape Nicola Mole, on a cruise, part of the crew were engaged handing the mizen topsail; the captain speaking sharp to them, two of the men fell from the yards; when the others came down they were reprimanded in harsh terms by the captain, and several of them threatened with punishment—this occasioned much discontent, which continued until the next evening, when the mutiny broke out, by throwing double headed shot, &c. about the ship, and other disorderly behaviour, The first lieutenant went down to enquire what they wanted, and was soon wounded in the arm with a tomahawk; he retired for some time, and when he returned was knocked down with a tomahawk, his throat cut, and thrown overboard.—After which the sailors proceeded to the cabin in search of the captain who had locked himself in, but was soon dragged out (after having wounded 2 or 3 in defending himself with his sword) and experienced the fate of his unfortunate lieutenant: they afterwards seized upon and murdered every officer in the ship, except a master's mate, and two midshipmen.

They then directed their course for La Guira, where they arrived under Spanish colours, and delivered the ship up to the Spanish government, giving out that they had turned their officers adrift in their jolly boat. The Spaniards have since manned the ship and sent her to sea. Our informant further adds, that the crew of the Hermione were a mixture of several nations.

The following is an extract of the speech of Riou in the council of 500, Sept 15, as published in the "Gazette Historique et Politique, de la France et de l'Europe."

"It is notorious that the English carry on three fourths of their trade under American colours. The passports of the President of the United States are publicly granted in London. With the certainty of these facts, justice, the consideration due to the government, the encouragement merited by the zeal of the owners of privateers, and respect for the 329th article of the constitution, induce me to present the following project.

The council of 500 considering that the decree of the 12th Ventose last, relative to maritime prizes is not contrary to the 329 article of the constitution, declares that there is no room to deliberate on the propositions of Pastoret in the sitting of the 2d Messidor.

The council repeals the decree which had created a special commission to examine the reclamations of maritime prizes. (Decreed.")

The election of Santhonax as a member from St. Domingo of the council of 500 was declared valid Sept. 16th.

Letter of the 11th Fructidor, written by Adjutant General Moel Huard, to his friend at Paris.

At length, my dear friend, we can no longer doubt that the emperor has great friends at Paris. When we were at the gates of Venice, he accepted all, and today he denies himself; for ten days past it appears here, that hostilities will recommence. General Bnonaparte has reviewed us, and we are not left ignorant of the conduct of the emperor. All the officers and soldiers replied that they knew the road to Vienna, and that they would try it a second time. Buonaparte immediately after set out for Udine, where the council is assembled, for the purpose of obtaining a prompt explication from these messieurs.

The Journal des Hommes libres announces the discovery of a movement at Blois—It says that from the 20th to the 21st they had a report of a courier sent by Carnot to general Clarke, with dispatches, the object of which was to conclude a peace at any price. This, without doubt, determined the directory to order the arrestation of Clarke.

The news from Marseilles of the 22d, says a journalist is every way unsatisfactory. The national guard was formed the 19th, ala Pichegru. The republicans have not made their appearance; they would have been assassinated. All the Chouans and cut-throats are enrolled. The most famous assassins are officers.

The city is always guarded; viz. Part of the Chouans are encamped without and have their patroles like a city besieged; they wait with impatience for the news from Paris, and threaten daily to carry measures to the last excess, even should they hear that their party is vanquished, adding that they have no asylum left if the government should triumph.

Extract of a private letter from Artenay, September 12.

"The transported deputies arrived here yesterday at 11 o'clock in the morning.—The waggons in which they are carried closed by iron bars, are covered entirely with planks painted red—No light is admitted except before and behind, and the hauteur with which they conduct themselves is sufficient to prevent their being seen. The door of entrance is locked and bolted.

General Dutertre, who commands the escort composed of 160 Hussars, permitted them here, for the first time to dine out of their carriages—He provided a room, forbidding any thing to be given them without his order, or to communicate with them. An adjutant general named Hochereau, had told them that they would go to Orleans that evening. The general had him immediately arrested, and conducted by a gendarme to Paris.

The prisoners all complain of the inconvenience of their carriages—Three of them are sick, particularly Barthelemi. His countenance shews the alteration of his health; he is melancholy and sad. Pichegru, his countenance serene, his deportment firm; he preserves his military sang froid. After dinner they set off for Orleans, where they will arrive in the evening.

COUNCIL OF FIVE HUNDRED.

September 13.

The central administration of Precy de Done congratulates the councils, that they had crushed the royalist conspirators. You have declared, says their address, that the French armies have deserved well of their country; well the whole people declare that you have well deserved their esteem. Honorable mention.

The republicans of Chalons-sur-Marne write as follows: By crushing the seeds of royalism you have well deserved of the country, &c.

A member observed that an article of the law passed on the organization of the gendarmerie, requires that each private shall be able to read and write correctly So rigorous a condition, he observed, would drive from their places a croud of decided republicans, whose families would be plunged into misery. He moved that this subject be referred to the military committee. Agreed.

The subject of finances was taken up. The report of a decree was adopted laying a tax on public carriages for the transportation of persons of one tenth part of the hire of such carriages, when they travel at stated periods, and on public carriages for the transportation of persons travelling occasionally as follows:

For a two wheeled carriage with two seats 20 livres per annum.

For a two wheeled carriage with four seats 35.

A turnpike toll for the receipt of monies to be exclusively appropriated to the repair of the highways was also agreed to. The receipts of each turnpike are to be rented out to the highest bidder. The plan is to be put in operation on the portions of highways nearest Paris, and thence to be extended gradually to the frontiers in every direction.

The establishment of a national lottery was also decreed.

In the name of the committee of inspectors Cales presented a report on a dress for the representatives of the people. [It should be remarked that the former project of decree on the subject of a costume for the legislature never became a law.] It was to consist in a blue coat red lining the collar and facings embroidered in gold; golden button stamped with a balance and level; a tricolor sash; a deep red silk cloak for the elders, and one rose color for the five hundred, which should fall four inches lower than the coat. Round hat with a feather, golden loop.

Chasal conceived this costume resembled too much the military dress. He offered another plan, which he conceived harmonized better with that of the directory.

Upon the motion of Coupe the council ordered the printing of the plan of Cales.

Sept. 14.

The citizens of Chinon congratulate the council on the events of the 18th Fructidor. The national representation say they is no longer under oppression, liberty is restored for them; long live the republic.

The administration of one of the cantons of the department of l'Allier, write that the administrated are awake, and ready to march against the enemies of the republic. Honourable mention in the minutes.

Jourdan (of Haute Vienne) called the attention of the council to the situation of the wounded defenders of the country, and the relations of those who had expired in the field of honor and of those who still served under the banners of the republic. He stated, that by the fall of assignats the compensation allowed them by the existing laws was merely nominal. On his motion a special committee was appointed on this subject.

Pons (of Verdun) proposed a decree tending to annul the prosecutions on foot against persons relative to the holding of the primary assemblies, and to restore to liberty the citizens who had been thrown into prison on the occasion. He moved, that urgency he declared and that the decree should pass without delay.

Philippe Delville, moved that it be printed, and the consideration adjourned.

Several members wished a question on the decree.

Pons (of Verdun) I am surprised that my colleague should wish the question adjourned. Does he not know, that in several of the departments the republicans are groaning in fetters? In the department of Nievre alone, which was the head quarters of the royalists and chouans there are more than 200 who have been thrown into dungeons.—These facts are certain, and I hope that Delville will cite others as a motive in favour of the adjournment.

Philippe Delville wished the delay because the measure was important, as it went to interrupt the usual course of justice. He admitted the facts brought forward by the reporter; but thought a delay of 24 hours could not be pregnant with very bad consequences.

Sautreau was opposed to the adjournment. Is it not, he asked, a great evil to suffer citizens to remain 24 hours in fetters? In my department a multitude of artisans have been imprisoned, by virtue of mandates of arrestation, executed in the night time, by the gendarmery, and accompanied with the most terrifying circumstances; and the royalists thus conducted themselves, in order to terrify the patriots, prevent their attendance in the assemblies and secure the elections.

The vote of urgency was carried and also the decree.

Echasseraux, the elder, in the name of a special committee, made a report on the elections of St. Domingo. He concluded it by the following plan of decree, which was adopted

Art. I. The law which declares null the elections made by the electoral assembly, holden at Cape-Francois, for the 4th year, is repealed. Consequently are admitted into the Legislative body, and will take their seats in the council of elders, the citizens Brottier, Lavaux, and in the council of five hundred, the citizens Thomoni, Sonthonax, Petimiaud and Boiren, jun.

II. The elections made by the electorial assembly, held at the Cape, on the 20th Germinal, 5th year of the Republic, are declared valid for four members, which St. Domingo has a right to send, agreeably to the last schedule of the number of deputies apportioned to each department. Consequently are declared members of the legislative body and shall take their seats in the council of elders the citizens Etienne Mentor and James Tonnelier, and in the council of five hundred, the citizens Pierre-Joseph Leborgne, and William-Henry Vergniaud.

To the tribunal of cassation (errors and appeals) citizen Mirbek.

Villiers called the attention of the council to the debt, proposing that one third of the interest on the public debt should be paid in cash, beginning with the last six months of the 5th year; and that the other two thirds shall be paid in notes, payable to bearer, which notes are to be received in payment for national domains. The tax on registering (droit d'enregis tremene) to be appropriated to the discharge of the cash third.

Pison du Galand was averse to the plan He wished the first part of the project adopted, that relating to the payment of the third in cash and the other postponed.

Julien Souhait thought the project more plausible than solid. It did not place the creditors on a better footing. He made this calculation: Supposing you give the creditors one third in cash, that will be 80 millions: but they now receive a fourth 60 millions, and certificates which may be put at 20 millions, making also 80 millions; of course they are as well situated as the project would make them. He was in favour of a postponement.

Fabre took the part of the creditors also. He moved that the council should decree that the payment of the first third should be made agreeably to the plan proposed, and that the tax on registering should be appropriated for this effect; and that part of the plan which relates to the two-thirds, be referred back to the committee, whom every member was invited to enlighten with their experience, by attending their sitting. Adopted.

Sept. 15.

Poulain Grandpre brought forward a project of decree respecting the replacing of dismissed administrators, which was adopted.

The law of the 30th Messidor, which takes from the Directory the constitutional right of making those appointments, when there does not remain in the administration a number of members sufficient to deliberate was repealed. Administrations of the law now proposed are to fill up vacancies in their own body only when they have a number of members sufficient to deliberate; when they have not, the Directory are to make the appointment agreeably to the constitution.

Villers in the name of the Financial Committee called the attention of the council to the subject of the public debt. The result of the sitting the committee had held last evening was, the impossibility of separating the two parts of the project, that relating to the one third to be paid in cash, and that proposing the other two thirds to be discharged by certificates payable to bearer, and receivable for national property. The two parts of the project should go hand in hand.

Such was the result of the deliberations of the committee; they had also to propose some additional articles discriminating in favor of small creditors.

Julien Souhait now supported the plan. One great desideratum, on which he said the committee had agreed, was, that the sale of national property should be proceeded to with vigour. It served to attach the purchasers to the republic. Abuses had crept into this department; but the minister of finance had assured the committee that they were owing to the administrations which were composed chiefly of men who were enemies of the Republic and hindered the sales; but since the 18th Fructidor, the government will be able to watch effectually those administrators, and things have changed their complection.

Retz opposed the project of decree on the ground that it did not do full justice to the creditors. The contract between the state and its creditors could not without violating the first principles of justice be infringed. If it was, a stab would be given to public credit. He treated as chimerical the idea of redeeming with national domains the two thirds to be paid now in paper. They might as well talk of the lands in California as those in St. Domingo which remained the property of the state.

Villers argued, that the project did every justice to the creditor which they had in equity a right to expect, and which the state was able to give. He cited the example of the United States in favour of this mode of compromising with the creditors of the state. "You are told," he observed, "that credit will be prostrated." But how can it fall, when you will present to Europe a nation having no debt in comparison with England, which is weighed down under the weight of hers. He hoped the two parts of the subject would not be put asunder.

Fabre said, We must be just towards the citizens of France as well as to the creditors of the state. To be just towards the first, the legislature must decree not more taxes than the nation can pay. Who will assert that it is possible to require more than 616 millions of livres, which are already decreed. Yet this must be done if the creditors cannot be paid with the national domains, and the nation cannot pay more. He went on to shew, that the project proposed was advantageous to the creditor and all they could expect from the state.

The project of the decree was then adopted.

The central office on the 22d Fructidor (8th Sept.) transmitted to the commissaries of police of the commune of Paris an abstract of the law of the 19th, of which they recommended the execution. RHODE ISLAND.

In the house of representatives a few days since, a motion for calling a convention to form a constitution for that state, was negatived by a large majority. James Burrill, jun. esq. was chosen attorney general, in the room of Hon. Ray Greene, elected federal senator.

BIOGRAPHICAL ANECDOTE.

In June, 1779, died in England, Mrs. Ross, celebrated for her beauty and constancy. Having met with opposition in her engagement with capt. Charles Ross, she followed him with men's cloathes to America: where, after such a research and fatigue as scarce any of her sex could have undergone, she found him in the woods lying for dead, with a poisoned wound, after a skirmish with the Indians; when, having previously studied surgery in England, she saved his life by sucking his wound, and nursing him with scarce a covering, for a space of six weeks; during which time she remained unsuspected by him, having died her face with lime and bark: The captain recovering, they removed into Philadelphia; where, as soon as she had found a clergyman to join her to him forever, she appeared as herself, the priest accompanying her.

They lived four years in a fondness that could only be interrupted by her declining health, the fatigue she had undergone, and the poison not properly expelled, which she had imbibed from his wound, undermining her constitution: the knowledge he had of it, and piercing regret for having been the occasion, affecting him still more sensibly, he died with a broken heart at John's town.

She lived to return, and implore forgiveness of her family, whom she had distressed so long by their ignorance of her destiny. She died, in consequence of her grief and affection, at the age of twenty six.

[This is probably the story on which the interesting novel of Emma Corbett is founded.]

"So Boreas breathes from forth the Frozen Zone,
"That rivers turn to Crystal Rocks like Stone,
"The Bald-pate Woods are Perriwigg'd with Wool
"That Nature from Congealed Clouds doth pull."

For the Gazette of the United States.

Mr. Fenno,

The following is an extract from a work, written by P. Kennedy, Esq. entitled an "Answer to Mr. Paine's letter to General Washington, or Mad Tom convicted of the blackest ingratitude." If it has not already appeared in print in America, you will probably thinst it worthy of a place in your paper. J. W.

"Amid the convulsions which have for some years unhappily agitated the European world. Amid the horrors of a revolution, founded on animosities, hatred, massacres and blood, in which the human character has been exhibited in all its deformity, no man has laboured more unceasingly to unhinge the links of social order, and to overturn religion, morality and government, than the enthusiastic, the depraved, the ungrateful Tom Paine.

Having developed the inveterate malice, the subtle cruelty of his character in a series of wild discussions and dangerous theories, all tending to the overthrow of general prosperity and individual happiness in every country, he has now consummated his guilt, and given the most evident proofs of the foulness of his heart, by sacrificing the last little remnant of imputed patriotism, to a faithless and cowardly attack on his early benefactor and friend.

We are not surprized, because we discover plainly the immediate cause of the violent change that has dictated the declarations of discontent, and threats of hostility, which continue to fill the columns of the French journals, against the firm and prudent conduct of the American Congress, aided by their respectable President. It is the business of the designing, ill-intentioned, ambitious leaders of faction in France, under the cloak of liberty, to practise all the arts of calumny, to mislead the people, and hurry them into the wildest measures. That Tom Paine should seize with avidity and with an activity, unfortunately in him combined with a most malignant disposition, every channel of invective against the British government, we cannot wonder at. But that he should add to the black catalogue of his crimes, that of deep ingratitude, by aiming to stab the fame, to murder the character of the man that cherished his political infancy and brought him forward into public life, proves that the assumed garb of modern philosophy is but a safer covering for the dagger of the assassin. An enemy of Great-Britain by principles of rebellion, by habits of abuse, by circumstances of political elevation and private interest, we have seen him direct the whole force of his imposing talents the specious trick of smooth phraseology, the cant of popular prejudices to discolour, to traduce the established forms of government and to overthrow the constitution of those kingdoms: But in his last performance, he far out-does his usual out-doings—he out strips depravity; and high over-leaping over-leaps all bounds—faithful to his avowed principles of anarchy and commotion, he boldly soars to the last and greatest of crimes, ingratitude, and arraigns the illustrious Washington for his persevering and virtuous attachment to the order, the prosperity of the American States.

In the phrenzy of gallic zeal, he forgets that he fell a victim in his turn to the fury of faction; and that in despite of his labours for a series of years in the cause of revolutionary government, he was consigned to a dungeon; and eventually rescued from the guillotine, which carried off his fellow-actors on the great revolutionary theatre, after strutting their hour on the bloody stage, only by the generous interference of those peaceful Americans, whom he now loads with reproach and obliquy, because they will not sacrifice individual virtue, and rational wisdom to the insolent dictation of French partizans and domestic anarchists. One would have thought that the situation of distress and suffering, into which Paine was hurried, among the other revolutionary heroes of his day, and his narrow escape from the gripe of the guillotine, should have checked the cacoethes scribendi, and awed him from meddling further in political affairs. But it seems that confinement tended only to sharpen the edge of calumny, and to point more keenly the shafts of slander against all that men are taught to respect in society—morality and religion. The moment of his deliverance from prison, was like the opening of pandora's box, marked by the issuing forth of a more pestilential vapour than what he had before sent into the world. Religion, that great cement and bond of public order—the gracious harbinger of peace and happiness to mankind, became the object of his scurrility and ridicule. Maxims arrayed in all the false colourings and tinsel glare of subtle attraction, were propagated and diligently spread abroad to catch the prejudices of the unthinking and ignorant, as well as to gratify the conceits and vanity of the dissolute and profane.

STAGES.

THE public are requeſted to take notice, that the partnerſhip which has for ſome time ſubſiſted between Mathias Slough of Lancaſter, and William Geer, is now diſſolved: but, not as M. Slough inſinuates to the public without juſt cauſe; as will more fully appear by a letter on the ſubject from M. Slough to W. Geer, dated the 29th December laſt, a recital of which is not now deemed neceſſary. Any gentleman who wiſhes to be more circumſtantially informed of the merits of this buſineſs, by applying to W. Geer may have the peruſal of M. Slough's letter, and then can be at full liberty to determine whether or not W. Geer is not perfectly juſtifiable in attaching himſelf to any other perſon in the proſecution of the Stage conveyance from Philadelphia to Shippenſburg, or any other place.

Now from the liberal and generous ſupport the public were pleaſed to confer on the firſt effort in this buſineſs, William Geer, in conjunction with Meſſrs. Reily, Weed and Witmer, is determined to proſecute and carry it on, with every care, attention and diſpatch that a zeal to oblige the public can poſſibly exert.

The above company, who are amply provided with carriages, horſes, and every appurtenance to render the paſſage ſafe and commodious, inform thoſe who wiſh to patronize and encourage the undertaking, that they can take their ſeats at George Weed's, the ſign of the White Horſe, Market Street, Philadelphia, on every Monday and Friday, to proceed to Lancaſter, Harriſburg, Carliſle and Shippenſburg. The fare as hitherto eſtabliſhed.

For the further accommodation of the public, a Stage will ſtart every Wedneſday from the houſe of Samuel Elder, in Harriſburg, arrive at Sunbury in Northumberland county, every Thurſday, and return from thence and arrive at Harriſburg every Saturday, ſo that paſſengers deſtined for Lancaſter or Philadelphia, may proceed on Mondays.

WILLIAM GEER.

Lancaſter, Jan. 27, 1797.

N. B. This Line of Stages ſtarts from the houſe of William Ferree, in Lancaſter, on every Tueſday and Saturday morning at 6 o'clock, proceeding to the weſtward; and from the houſe of Mr. Samuel Elder in Harriſburg every Wedneſday morning, on the ſame evening arrives at Patrick Cochran's in Shippenſburg, and returns from thence on every Thurſday: performing the ſame routine daily as in its tour from Philadelphia. mwf

There are four rooms and a large entry on each floor, and five rooms in the garret, a range of back buildings 51 feet in length, and a piazza of 57 feet. There is a pump in the yard, an excellent kitchen garden, at the farther end of which are a carriage houſe and two ſtables, one of which is new, 44 feet long, with ſtalls in the two ſtables for 27 horſes. The healthineſs and pleaſantneſs of its ſituation, and the number of genteel and agreeable families in and near the town, render it a deſirable retreat for a gentleman from the city. The commodiouſneſs of the houſe, its central poſition, and the largeneſs of the ſtables, make it every way ſuitable for a tavern, for which it has always been conſiderd as a capital ſtand. The Philadelphia, Aſſton, and Tuckerton

MAIL STAGE.

THE proprietors beg leave to inform the public, that they have eſtabliſhed a Stage between Philadelphia, Aſſton, Batſto, Hampton, Speedwell, and Martha Furnace, Wading River ſlitting mill, and the town of Tuckerton, in New-Jerſey, to go once a week, and are provided with good horſes, a comfortable carriage, and a careful driver, for the conveyance of the mail, paſſengers, and goods. The Stage will ſtart every Thurſday, at 10 o'clock, A. M. from Mr. Daniel Cooper's Ferry, and lodge that night at Joel Bodine's, at Longacoming; and on on Friday, at 6 o'clock, P. M. arrive at Caleb Evans's, inkeeper, in Tuckerton, diſtant from the city 54 miles, (from the Atlantic 6, and from the Eaſt Greeſing Plains 7 miles) where are good accommodations for travellers, and where are commodious and ſafe paſſage boats provided to convey paſſengers to Capt. William Warrington's houſe, on Tucker's Iſland, adjoinining the Atlantic, where are good accommodations, and a convenient place to bathe; the ſportſman who wiſhes to regale himſelf with fowling and fiſhing, may at this place be highly gratified, there being at almoſt every ſeaſon of the year fowl and fiſh in abundance.—The Stage on its return, ſtarts from the aforeſaid C. Evans's in Tuckerton, every Tueſday, at 6 o'clock, A. M. breakfaſts at John Bodine's, at Wading River Bridge, lodge that night at Longacoming, and at 1 o'clock, P. M. on Wedneſday, arrive at the aforeſaid Cooper's Ferry. It is preſumed that no route of an equal diſtance will be leſs expenſive, or furniſh the traveller with a greater variety of amuſement, as he will not only have a pleaſant ſail to the atlantic from Tuckerton, but have the curioſity of ſeeing on the road thither a number of capital furnaces and forges, and one ſlitting mill, in complete order, and at work; gentlemen, too, who are owners, or factors, of any of the aforeſaid iron works, are ſolicited to encourage and ſupport this ſtage (by which they can be ſo well accommodated) the continuance of which will much depend on their aid. The rates of paſſengers and baggage are as follows: For a paſſenger from the aforeſaid Daniel Cooper's Ferry to Tuckerton, including 14 lb. of baggage, Two Dollars; for way paſſengers per mile, Four Cents—150 lb. of baggage equal to a paſſenger. Poſtage of letters, newſpapers, &c. will be agreeably to law.

Tuckerton, Sept. 28. Oct. 5.—2awtf

The Norfolk Mail STAGE.

THIS Stage ſtarts from the GEORGE Tavern, at the corner of Second and Arch Streets, in Philadelphia, every Tueſday, Thurſday, and Saturday, at 3 o'clock, in the morning; arrives at Dover the firſt day, at Snowhill the ſecond day, at Northampton Court Houſe the third day, and on the morning of the fourth day the paſſengers find a ſafe and comfortable packet to convey them to Norfolk.

A packet leaves Norfolk for Northampton ferry, every Tueſday, Thurſday and Saturday, and the Stage ſtarts from this ferry for Philadelphia, every Monday, Wedneſday and Friday; puts up at Snow Hill the firſt night, at Dover the 2d night, and arrives in Philadelphia in the evening of the third day.

The diſtance on this route, between Philadelphia and Norfolk, is 80 miles leſs than on any ſtage route between thoſe places.

Too much cannot be ſaid in favor of the road, which is moſt excellent indeed. The proprietors willingly engage to return the whole fare to any paſſenger, who, after having performed this route, will ſay that he ever travelled in a ſtage for the ſame diſtance, ſo good a road in AMERICA.
